

PRINCESS HONORED

ONE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY OF PRINCESS KIL-SQUAH CELEBRATED AT ROANOKE, INDIANA, TODAY.

(Herald Special.)
Huntington, Ind., July 4.—There were great "doings" at Roanoke, a neat little village about seven miles from here, today and large crowds from the neighborhood districts were gathered there to attend the special celebration of two historical events, the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the one hundredth birthday of Kil-squa-ah (Rising Sun), a princess of the royal blood of the Miami, one of the most powerful Indian tribes which once roamed through the Middle West. The actual centenary of the Miami princess was on May 25, but it was decided to postpone the celebration of the day until the Glorious Fourth.

The entire population of Roanoke and the surrounding country turned out to take part in the celebration and to do honor to the princess, who lives on a forty-acre farm on the outskirts of Roanoke. The program of the exercises included music and singing of patriotic songs, the reading of the Declaration of Independence and an address by the Rev. J. R. Quinlan on the Indian days of the past, with special reference to the history of the Miami tribe and the famous ancestors of Princess Kil-squa-ah.

The princess was born on the banks of Little river, not far from Huntington about a hundred years ago, and for seventy-five years has lived in Roanoke. Her grandfather was Little Turtle, the famous fighting chief of the Miami. On her grandfather's side the princess is also related to Al-go-ma-qua, who married Captain Holmes, a soldier of the United States and whose descendants still live in this part of the country. Her father was Wa-pa-mum-qua and her husband, who died many years ago, was Anthony Revard, a French trader, who settled in this locality more than eighty years ago. Kil-squa-ah is still comparatively young and vigorous for her age, but cannot do much work on her farm. For a number of years Dr. Koontz, of Roanoke, and his wife have taken care of the old Indian princess. The princess retains a remarkably good memory for the early days of her life and, when in the mood, tells many interesting stories about the primitive Indian life in the Middle West a hundred years ago.

WITH THE FIGHTERS

Henry Piet, who has been boxing in this country for the past year, has returned to England.

Joe Gans writes from Arizona that instead of being near to death his health is very much improved.

On the way from San Francisco to Reno Jack Johnson dropped $500 and Al Kaufman was cleaned out in a crap game.

Jack (Twin) Sullivan will meet Ed McGoorty in Milwaukee today.

Tom Corbett, a brother of Jim, is the official betting commissioner of the big fight at Reno today.

Paul Parsons of Memphis, an eight-year-old youngster, is out with a challenge to any 60 pound boxer in the country.

Ray Bronson boxed in Memphis recently without having a second in his corner.

The big bunch of scrappers who have been working in California will no doubt beat it for other parts.

FRISCO SYSTEM

Plans Air Line From Fort Worth to Brownsville.

San Antonio, Texas, July 4.—According to a statement made by A. T. Perkins, vice president of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico railroad, the Frisco system may in the near future build an air line from Fort Worth to Brownsville, via San Antonio. Engineers now in the field are said to have mapped out the route of the new line as follows: Fort Worth, Brady, Menardville, Kerrville, San Antonio, Pleasanton, Oakville, Alice, Kingsville and Brownsville. Part of the line north of this city is now building, grading crews being in the field between Menardville and Brady.

The Frisco system occupies a very strategic position among Texas railroads as it is, and a line such as now proposed would give it the cream of all business in Southwest Texas territory to be tapped and traversed by it being one of the richest on the continent.

SANE 4TH IN CHICAGO

PROMOTERS OF "SAFE AND SANE FOURTH" PROVIDE HISTORICAL PARADE AND PAGEANT FOR THE PEOPLE.

(Herald Special.)
Chicago, Ill., July 4.—For the first time in its history Chicago celebrated the Fourth of July in a "sane" and harmless way. The promoters of the "safe and sane Fourth" idea realized that some adequate equivalent had to be offered to patriotic enthusiasts in exchange for the customary celebrations which annually demanded a heavy toll of human lives and property. The thing was done handsomely and lavishly and proved an eminent success. The great features of the day was the monster military and historical parade and pageant with about five thousand United States soldiers of different arms and scores of civic societies in the parade. The historical feature in the parade was represented by more than thirty floats bearing allegorical groups or representations of various important events in the history of this country.

Of especial interest was that part of the parade which showed by floats and representative groups of men in their national costumes the different races and nations composing the population of Chicago.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT.

Engineer of San Marcos Light Plant Victim of Accident.

San Marcos, Texas, July 1.—As a result of an accident caused by the explosion of the flywheels last night about 9 o'clock at the power station of the San Marcos Utilities company, one man is dead and another is seriously, though not fatally, injured. C. H. Russell, night engineer, was struck in the abdomen by a piece of flying fragments, and died a few hours later. The injured man is Alfred Wendt, night oiler at the power station. He was struck about the neck and shoulders with flying missiles and considerably bruised, but will recover.

The accident was caused, it is thought, by the slipping of a belt from the drive wheel of an accessory engine used for supply work at the station and from failure of the proper action of the engine's governor. The machine raced, resulting in practically wrecking it completely. The flywheels burst and parts were driven through the roof, walls and floor of the building. It is supposed that the engineer and oiler were going to stop the engine at the time they met their fate. The governor of the engine was tested only a few weeks ago and found all right.

Mr. Russell came to this city about six months ago, and had held this position since that time, having proven an efficient employee. He is survived by his wife, who was in Dallas at the time of the accident, and who arrived here this afternoon.

FRANCISCO KIDNAPED

MAN WITH A HISTORY AND WHO DID GOOD WORK IN CONTINENTAL ARMY, REMEMBERED BY NORTH CAROLINA.

(Herald Special.)
Guilford Courthouse, N. C., July 4.—Representatives of patriotic societies and numerous other persons took part here today in the unveiling of a tablet in honor of the memory of Peter Francisco, a private in the Continental army. The exercises were held at the Guilford battle ground, where the address of the day was delivered by Major B. F. Dixon, state auditor of North Carolina.

Peter Francisco, according to history and tradition, was a most remarkable man in many respects. He is believed to have been brought to America and abandoned at five years of age, probably having been kidnapped from Portugal. At the beginning of the revolution he enlisted as a private. He was a giant in stature and it is said that General Washington had a special sword six feet long made for him.

With this sword, at the battle of Guilford Courthouse, Francisco is said to have performed a most remarkable deed of nerve and daring. In encountering the enemy in a charge he was pierced through the leg and pinned to his saddle. He waited until the bayonet was drawn out and then struck a powerful blow with his sword that literally split his opponent's head through far down into the shoulders and neck.

TWO THOUSAND CARS

Of Peaches Will Move From the East Texas Section.

Two thousand cars of Elberta peaches is the crop expected from the Jacksonville and East Texas fruit district this year, it is stated. Already, according to authentic information, 1,700 cars of tomatoes and early peaches have been transported to points east. The crop this year is said to be much above the average in yield. The freight movement in Elberta is expected to begin about July 5.

The Weather in June.

A bulletin has just been issued from the local weather office, showing temperatures, precipitation, etc., for the month of June since 1874, when the first record was kept by the Palestine office. The total precipitation for June, 1910, was 1.49, which is reported as 2.33 below normal, making the past month a very dry one. The normal rainfall for June is 3.82. The driest month of June during the long period in which records have been kept was in 1896, when the total rainfall was 0.71. The wettest June was in 1892, when 9.77 inches of rain fell. The temperature for last month averaged 78, while the normal temperature for the month is 78.9. June averages in temperature has varied but little during the past thirty-six years, the lowest average being 73, in 1903; the highest was 82, in 1896. The past month there were fourteen clear days, fifteen partly cloudy days, and one day was designed as cloudy.
